Severe Weather Outlook Monday, January 22, 2018

Hazardous Weather

Today will be mostly sunny with highs in the upper 50s to low 60s. It will be breezy with west to northwest winds around 15 to 20 mph with gusts up to 30 mph. There is an elevated fire danger along and west of a Gainesville to Hillsboro line due to breezy winds and low humidity.

There is a moderate risk of life threatening rip currents for anyone who enters the chilly waters today, especially in the vicinity of the South Padre Island jetties. A cold front moves through this morning with areas of fog and locally dense fog ahead of it. An isolated shower can't be ruled out along the front; otherwise, clouds will decrease through the day today with high temperatures topping off in the upper 60s and brisk northerly winds.
